Club News

For years, the neighbors' forest provided a natural barrier to intruders onto the property. When he logged his property, it became readily apparent that fence was needed to provide a deterrent to those who may be enticed to come on to the property to shoot or worse destroy or steal property. Three hundred feet of fencing was authorized to be installed as an interim measure. As funds come available, the plan is to run the fence the entire distance of the property line down to the clubhouse.

On the range we have experienced a couple of problems with our targets. First, the lack of availability of cedar bales has resulted in us using some cedar bales beyond their usable life. This has resulted in arrows passing through the bales and arrows being ruined. Secondly, members have complained of ruined arrows shooting into the twine bales. To resolve these issues and bring some uniformity to the range, we purchased supplies to construct 25 sheds and compressed straw bales. On 30 April and 1 May, a small work party helped construct the new sheds on the practice range and started replacing the cedar bales on the field courses. Over the next month, we will replace the remaining cedar bales on the field courses giving the range a long-term solution to target maintenance. Eventually, we will replace the remaining twine bales on the B1 field course as money and manpower allows.

Summer Lessons at Sylvan 2016

Sylvan's popular community lessons return this summer from 6 to 7:30 p.m. on Monday evenings from June 13 through Aug. 15 (but no class on July 4). Volunteer certified instructors including John Dull, Mike Ellerbe and Laurie Robinson will get beginners started right and help more experienced archers fine-tune their form. We teach the class with the club's simple recurve bows, with light draw weights and traditional technique (no sights), which is a great foundation for any style of archery. (Or you can bring your own bow if you have one. Some of our instructors are well-versed in longbow and compound as well.) The class is free for members and costs $5 for nonmembers or for members who want to use the club equipment. Try one session, several or all, but preregistration is required. (Space is limited if you are using club gear.) To preregister, send a text or email to Laurie at 503-928-2357 or archer.laur@gmail.com. Club members who are available to help teach these classes can also contact Laurie.

A group of Scout leaders hone their teaching skills and their recurve form in the broadhead pit during a Level 1 instructor certification class taught by Laurie Robinson in April.
